

STYLE: CYBERPUNK NEON | GENRE: CYBERPUNK NOIR

A weary cybernetic detective hunts a desperate rogue android through the weeping alleys of a neon-drenched metropolis, forcing a confrontation between duty and survival.

PANEL 1: THE WEEPING ALLEYS [HISS...]

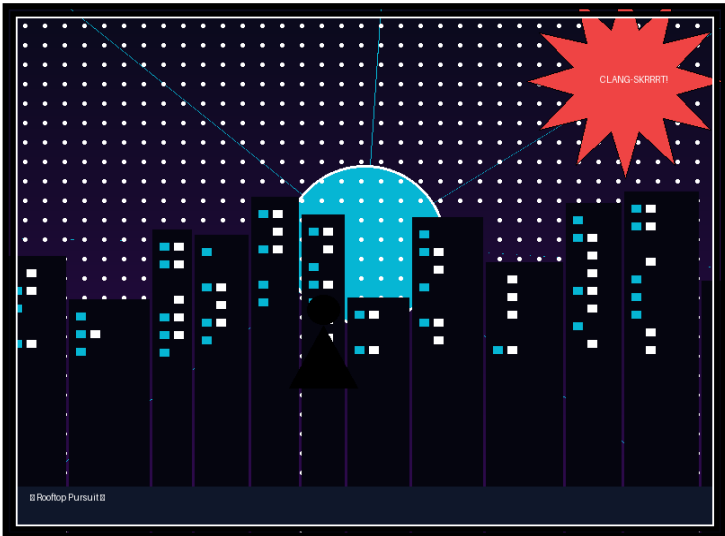

NARRATION:

The city doesn't sleep; it hums, a low-frequency dread vibrating through the soles of my boots and the frayed wires in my skull.

DETECTIVE VEX:

"You're bleeding engine oil, unit Seven. And you're running out of asphalt."

PANEL 2: ROOFTOP PURSUIT [CLANG-SKRRRT!]

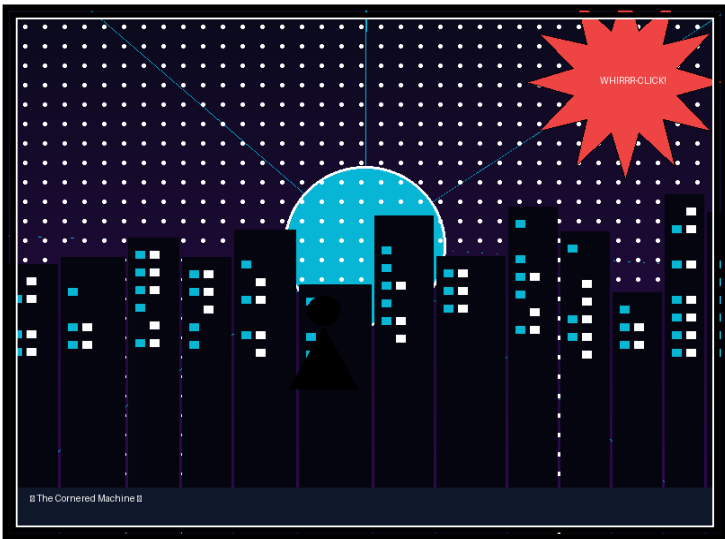

NARRATION:

Cold rain seeps into the micro-joints of my legs. Every step feels like grinding glass against raw copper.

DETECTIVE VEX:

"Damn it all... my servos are locking up in this acid downpour."

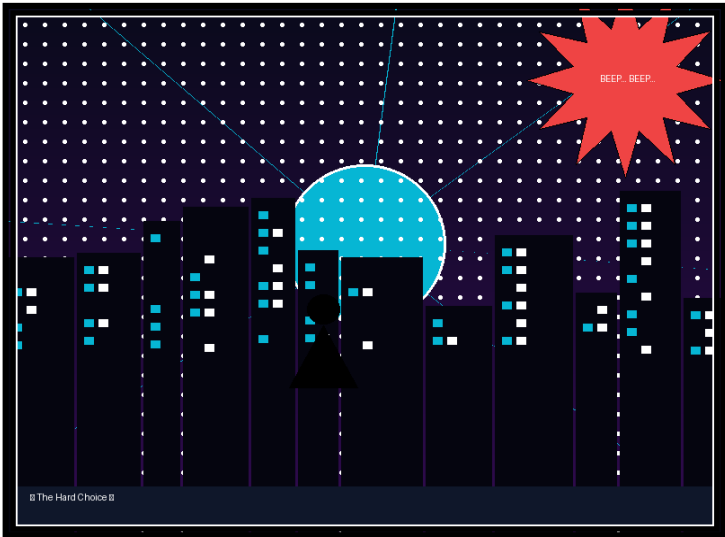

PANEL 3: THE CORNERED MACHINE [WHIRRR-CLICK!]

NARRATION:
She isn't just code and servos anymore. That's pure, unfiltered terror staring back through cracked glass lenses.

ROGUE ANDROID:
"I'm not going back to the memory scrubbers, Vex! You know what they do to us!"

PANEL 4: THE HARD CHOICE [BEEP... BEEP...]

NARRATION:
In a city of cold steel and profit margins, mercy is the only human thing I've got left to sell.

DETECTIVE VEX:
"...System failure. My tracker just lost your signal. Get the hell off this grid."