When the ancient starlight begins to fade from the enchanted forest, a brave little fox named Hope ventures deep into the forbidden Whispering Woods to confront shadow and restore

PANEL 1: THE FOREST'S EDGE [RUSTLE...]

NARRATION:

Meadowvale's elders called it madness. But when the starlight blossoms began to wither, courage wasn't a choice--it was a necessity.

HOPE:

"The elders warned that no one returns from the Gloom... but I can feel the trees weeping."

PANEL 2: THE WHISPERING BRAMBLES [CREAAK...]

NARRATION:

Deep in the hollow, every shadow had teeth. Yet even the darkest thicket could not smother the faint pulse of ancient light.

HOPE:

"Hold on, little blossom. You're not alone in the dark anymore."

PANEL 3: SHADOW AND STARLIGHT [SHRRREEEE-FLASH!]

NARRATION:

Fear is natural to the small. But bravery isn't the absence of fear--it's standing your ground when the ground itself trembles.

HOPE:

"You feed on forgotten sorrow--but the forest still remembers the dawn!"

PANEL 4: DAWN OF THE MEADOW [HARMONY!]

NARRATION:

And so the smallest paws carved the greatest legend. The Whispering Woods had found its guardian.

HOPE:

"Look at it bloom... spring has come home at last."
